Get swept away with Tracy Corbett and spend your holidays on the Brighton pier After an injury derails her dream of becoming a professional dancer, Becca Roberts heads home to Brighton in search of a fresh start. And, when a part-time dance teacher role becomes available at The Starlight Playhouse, it seems like her stars are finally aligning. The crumbling old playhouse might need a bit of tender loving care (and a lick of paint!), but Becca is more than up to the challenge. That is until Becca's first love (and first heartbreak), Tom, waltzes into the Starlight Playhouse, and she realises life by the sea might not be as simple as she thought... Fall in love on Palace Pier in this feel-good romantic comedy, perfect for fans of Debbie Johnson and Jill Mansell. Reviews PRAISE FOR THE FORGET-ME-NOT FLOWER SHOP 'What a lovely story [...] a relaxed book to read' – Goodreads reviewer 'I laughed and shed tears while reading this book' – Goodreads reviewer 'Fabulous writing which kept me hooked from the first page . . . Five Stars!' – Goodreads reviewer 'Draws the reader into the lives of people who become like friends' – Goodreads reviewer 'Memorable characters you will remember for a long time!' – Goodreads reviewer 'A poignant and evocative exploration of how love defines our lives' – Goodreads reviewer 'Such an amazing book! I couldn't stop reading it' – Goodreads reviewer 'A stunning combination of drama, romance, tears, and laughter' – Goodreads reviewer About the author Tracy lives with her partner in Surrey and works part-time for her local citizen's advice bureau. Tracy has been writing for a number of years and has had a few short stories published in My Weekly magazine. As well as belonging to a local writing group, she enjoys amateur dramatics and can regularly be found dressing up in strange costumes and prancing about the stage pretending to be all manner of odd characters. The Forget-Me-Not Flower Shop is Tracy's first novel.
