

Plastic surgeon creates 'perfect wife' with 'Wonder Woman Makeover ...

by Lucy Grosslein - 26 August 2013

... Then asks her to marry him on first date

A plastic surgeon has used his body sculpting skills to create his dream woman before proposing to her on their first date.

Dr David Matlock met his bride Veronica, 38, in 2007 when she was 40lbs heavier and visited him seeking what is commonly known as 'designer vagina' surgery after giving birth to her daughter Isabella, now aged nine.

As well as the vaginoplasty, Dr Matlock suggested that the beautiful brunette also undergo a 'Wonder Woman Makeover', involving liposuction of the chin, arms, and legs, and a Brazilian butt lift.

'I couldn't even look into his eyes because of the reason I was there,' she said.

'I was so shy and bashful, but he says it was love at first sight. I didn't see her weight then, I just knew what I wanted to do,' he said of their first meeting. She opted for everything I suggested. Even marriage.'

Dr Matlock then took the now Mrs Matlock out for a date, immediately proposed to her, and has been helping her to enhance her figure ever since.

Prior to meeting her 49-year-old husband, full-time nurse Mrs Matlock had undergone three breast augmentations.

She has since had a Brazilian butt lift, vaginal rejuvenation, labiaplasty and G-spot shot, liposuction to her chin, arms and legs and, most recently, botox injections.

'I feel like I'm a walking advertisement for him,' she said.

And it is not just his wife who has gone under the knife in her own quest for physical perfection - Dr Matlock has himself undergone several procedures that utilise a fat-implant technique called Vaser High Def Liposculpting, which he pioneered.

Made up of live fat from the patient's body, the implants can be injected into the biceps, triceps, calves, or pecs to create a perfectly sculpted, muscular figure.

He is also trialling a procedure that involves injecting blood plasma rather than fat for patients like Dr Matlock who have very little fat.

Dr Matlock[...]has also had liposculpting done on his pecs, biceps, and triceps, and Botox injections to enhance his look.

He said: 'I just wanted to take my body to a point where, with exercise and diet, you couldn't get it there.'

Both Dr and Mrs Matlock compete in bodybuilding competitions where they show off their flawless physiques, and Mrs Matlock admits that her husband's obsession over fitness and beauty keeps her motivated to look her best.

(Source : <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2402153/>)