The picture represents Mount Rushmore located in South Dakota on which we can see the faces of four American presidents who contributed to American history. The faces which have been carved out in the Mountain commemorate the greatest American presidents. Indeed, from the left to the right are George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln. The monument dates back to 1941 and was sculpted by the Borglums who were sculptors.

The photograph depicts the Indian Museum of North America which was built in 1972-1973 a few miles away from Mount Rushmore. In this museum, visitors can see a large collection of art and artifacts which pay tribute to Native American culture. This place was created so as to honour the memory of the American Indians who were important in American history.
