You have all the makings of a super star! You relish the limelight and you are very conscious of your looks. You are destined to make the news and to be the talk of town!

- A maximum of ↗

You know how to be a star with dignity. You think carefully about how to dress, and how to act. You consider your celebrity to be a means of communicating your ideals to the public, and don't hesitate to support charitable causes or to write protest songs.

Becoming famous is the worst thing that could happen to you: you are selfish and consider yourself to be the centre of attention all the time. The money will go to your head, and you will spend it thoughtlessly. You will have difficulty controlling your temper and your behaviour will probably be antisocial. Is this what you want to become?

You are destined to become famous, but not a Star with a capital S. Your role will be just as important but much more discreet. You have already demonstrated your qualities as a decision-maker and are already very active in the political field. You are committed to supporting the cause you believe in and you take your responsibilities to heart.
