

I am going to speak about fast-food restaurants in the world and explain how they can be considered as places of power. First, I will emphasize the origin of fast-food restaurants. Second, I will mention the different types of fast-food restaurants. Then, I will explain the success of fast-food restaurants in our modern society.

Actually, Fast-food restaurants originated from the USA in the mid-20th. They were created to deliver quick meal to people at a cheaper price.

There are different types of fast-food nowadays such as Burger King, Starbuck, Kentucky Fried Chicken and so on...

Fast-food restaurants have become very popular especially in America where people are very busy. As they didn't have enough time to take lunch at regular and more expensive restaurants, they preferred to go to fast-food restaurants where the food is served quickly.

However, the fast-food restaurants have recently been blamed for obesity and diabetes.

As a conclusion, I will say that fast-food restaurants can be considered as places of power because people worldwide go to fast-food restaurants. This is a type of american restaurants which has conquered the world.
