- _____ ? (Room 50 – Upper floor – Level 3) :

- discovered in August 1984 in peat (tourbe) at Lindow Moss bog (marécage) in north west England.

- Scientists examined the body. (ici dépouille plutôt que corps)

- Radiocarbon dating (processus servant à identifier l'époque) shows that he died between 2 BC and AD 119.

- He was about 25 years of age, around 168 cm tall and weighed 60-65 kg.

- He wasn't a manual worker because his finger nails were well manicured. His beard and moustache had been cut by a pair of shears. (ciseaux)

- The man met a horrific death.

- He was struck/hit on the top of his head twice(2) with a heavy object, perhaps an axe (hache).

- He also received a vicious blow (coup mortel) in the back which broke one of his ribs (côtes). He had a thin cord tied around his neck ... used to strangle (étrangler) him and break his neck.

- His throat was cut...

Finally, he was placed face down in a pool in the bog (marécage)

Suggestions ?

He was the victim of a human sacrifice possibly carried out by Druids.

Peux-tu représenter la phrase ' face down in a pool in the bog (marécage) ' par un schéma ?

What's this talk of going home ?

My heart is in Dublin
 And the women of Trondheim
 Won't see me this autumn.
 The girl has not denied me
 Pleasure-visits; I'm glad;
 I love the Irish lady
 As well as my young self.

-Magnus 'Barelegs' Olafson, king of Norway about 1100
